a Minority of That Body-The

WASHINGTON, Feb. 5.- By the latter part of the week the Canadian reciprocity agreement will have passed the House Representatives and be transmitted to the Senate for its consideration The indications are that it will fail of passage in the Senate, although the Administration is counting on public sentiment to bail each for examination to-day force favorable action by that body before adjournment on March 4. President Taft and his advisers are scheduled to make a number of speeches on the subject of Canadian reciprocity this month, and they are hopeful that such utterances will tend to crystallize public sentiment in such a way as to induce Edward Smith. 22, of 502 West Fortythe opposition in the Senate to permit the Canadian agreement to come to a vote.

583 West Forty-fifth street. The prisoner Judging from the volume of correspondence received here since President Taft forwarded his special message to Congress on the subject the Canadian agreement meets with popular approval. Furthermore the great majority of the members of the House of Representatives is favorable to it. In addition it is known that a majority of the Senators would vote for the agreement if opportunity is given them to do so. The opposition in the Senate, however, is determined that the agreement shall not come to a vote at this session.

Among those who are opposed to Canadian reciprocity along the lines of the agreement proposed by President Taft are regulars, progressives and a handful of Democrats. The opposition to the agreement in the Senate is largely sectional, coming in the main from Senators representing the agricultural States of the Northwest, the intermountain States, Pacific coast States, the New England States and from Democrats who are always protectionists when tariff measures are up for consideration.

Among the stiffnecked regulars opposed to the agreement are Hale and Frye of Maine, Dillingham and Page of Vermont. Gallinger and Burnham of New Hampshire and Heyburn of Idaho. Senator Nelson of Minnesota, who voted for the Mills (Democratic) tariff bill when he was a member of the House years ago and who voted against the Pavne-Aldrich bill, is also said to be aligned with the opposition. Senator Beveridge of Indiana is the only Republican progressive of the Senate who has indorsed the agreement. It is the general understanding that the other progressives—Senators La Follette of Wisconsin, Cummins of Iowa.

tion by the Senate before the adjournment of this Congress.

Just how the measure is to receive any consideration in that time is not clear. The Senate will have before it not only the important general appropriation bills but the bill for a tariff board, which will probably be reported early this week. This measure will provoke long debate. In addition there is the Lorimer case, the Alaska coal bill, the resolution for a constitutional amendment for the popular election of Senators and Senatar Cummins's resolution amending the rules Cummine's resolution amending the rules to as to permit the revision of the tariff
schedule by schedule.

Schedule by schedule.

On all of these legislative questions there will be more or less debate. Notice has been already given of two set speeches this week on the popular election of Senators and at least four other speeches are scheduled to be made on other pending questions, among them the Lorimer case. It will thus be seen that if any small number of Senators make up their minds to debate the reciprocity agreement it will not come to a vote.

The Progressive Republicans of the country are badly split over the Canadian reciprocity agreement. While some of the insurgent leaders in Congress are opposed to the proposed legislation, the Progressive Republican League of Michigan, headed by Frederick W. Davis of Detroit, is passing resolutions calling for the enactment of the agreement into law. This league has recently sent letters to Gov Charles E. Osborne of Michigan and to several other Governors throughout the United States urging them to go to the support of the Taft reciprocity programme. A copy of one of the letters has been received in Washington and says among other things:

We was the enactment of the science of the letters has been received in Washington and says among other things: among other things:

Among other things:

We urge the enactment of the reciprocity tariff, which is in no wise antagonistic to the Republican principle of protection, but a part of it.

We are firmly of the opinion that the passage of this measure will be good business and good business is undoubtedly good integration. If it fails it will fail because the noisy shouters against the Dingley tariff and the Aldrich tariff are shown up as hypocritical demakogues. They have been howling for revision, here it is. CHAIRMAN TAWNEY SOUNDS A NOTE OF WARNING.

He Says It Will Come Pive Years From Now if the Membership of the House Is Increased to 483, as Provided in the Crumpacker Bill Now Before House.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 5 .- According to Representative James A. Tawney of Minnesota there will be a four billion oners were taken, but not until one of dollar Congress five years from now if the Crumpacker bill to increase the membership of the House of Representatives to 433 is passed

Mr. Tawney has organized and is leading the opposition to the Crumpacker bill. He is confident of defeating it. He believes that despite the increase in poputhe membership of the House lation should be retained at 391, its present figure. Mr. Tawney will retire from Congress on March 4, but between now and then he proposes to do all in his power to defeat any and all propositions looking to an increase in the membership of the House or any effort intended to prevent those States which have made a poor showing in population in the last ten years from losing seats.

"The most important matter now pending in the House," says Mr. Tawney in a statement issued to-night, "is this question of reapportionment. All other questions, including the fortification or neutralization of the Panama Canal and other problems which now confront the people and are subjects of general discussion in the newspapers, are dwarfed by it. It may be accepted as axiomatic that an increase in the membership of the House will be followed by a large increase in appropriations. The question is simply one of State pride versus legislative efficiency

"Members of Congress do not consider the question of appropriations from a national standpoint. They are more interested in the sum of money they can secure from the Federal Government for expenditure in their districts than they are in the aggregate of the annual disbursements that must be made by the national legislature. They are more concerned about being returned to the House than about being citizens of a sane and solvent republic. They have their eyes to the ground, but they mistake the chirping of crickets for the voice of the

"To increase the membership of the House will be but to augment the demand for money from the Federal Government on the Federal Treasury burdens that should be borne by the States, and by the same token the standard of individual membership in the House will be lowered. In former days men, both Follette of Wisconsin, Cummins of Iowa, Bristow of Kansas, Borah of Idaho and Clapp of Minnesota—will resist the passage of the agreement.

A majority is always able to enforce its will in the House. For that reason the word of the House, For that reason the word of the House leaders may be accepted at face value when they declare that the Canadian agreement will be reported by the Committee on Ways and Mans and promptly passed under a special rule limiting debate and barring amendments. The situation is different in the Scanate.

In the Scanate, In the Scanate at the sension to the Canadian agreement is in a position to the Canadian agreement is in a position to prevent action at this session, owing to the few works remaining between new gard adjournment on March 4. The opposition Sensors would not be put to the necessity of inaugurating a fillbuster. There is ecough pending legislation to keep the Scanate busy the rest of the agreement have only to insist upon attention to the Canadian bear of the season, and season of the course they should be in a position to keep the Scanate busy the rest of the season, and Season should be in a position to keep the Season bears of the season and Season's opposed to keep the Season bears of the season and Season's opposed to keep the Season bears of the season and Season's opposed to keep the Season have only to insist upon attention to the business in hand to prevent action on reciprocity at this time.

There have been reports from time to time during the last week that unless the Canadian bears of the canadian of the control of the consensus of the course they should be in a position to keep the pending the last week that unless the Canadian bear of the course they should be in a position to the business in hand to prevent action on reciprocity at this time.

There is enough pending legislation to keep the Season's opposed to the course they should be in a position of the course they should be in a position of the course they should be in a position to the business in ha tention to the business in hand to prevent action on reciprocity at this time.

There have been reports from time to time during the last week that unless the Canadian agreement is ratifed before adjournment. President Tait will call a special session of Congress. Administration leaders say that the President has not abandoned hope that the pact will be enacted into law before March 4 and is giving no thought to the idea of a special session at this time. What he will decide to do in the event of the failure of the agreement at this session is a question to be determined late.

Hearings on the McCall bill embodying the provisions of the Canadian agreement will be held by the Committee on Ways and Mans this week. The committee will report the bill Thursday. It will be brought into the House Friday and probably passed that day. From present indications the bill will probably not reach the Senate before the adjournment of this Congress.

Just how the measure is to receive any consideration in that time is not clear. The Senate will have before it not only the important genoral appropriation bills but the bill for a tariff board, which will probably be reported early this week. The congress and the single provision good the decidence of the decidence of the same and healthful, if we were sure that arise and amusements yould be sane and healthful, if we were sure that arise and amusements yould be sane and healthful, if we were sure that arise and amusements yould be sane and healthful, if we were sure that arise and amusements yould be sane and healthful, if we were sure that arise and amusements yould be sane and healthful, if we were sure that arise and amusements yould be sane and healthful, if we were sure that arise and amusements yould be sane and healthful, if we were sure that arise and amusements yould be sane and healthful, if we were sure that arise and amusements yould be sane and healthful, if we were turned away head of a special session to the determined late.

But I have been the states the proposit

ment to the Constitution providing for the election of United States Senstors by direct vote will be acted upon by the United States Senate within a few days. It is not certain that it will receive the necessary two-thirds vote. It is certian that 90 per cent, of the people are in favor of it. Will the Senate represent public sentiment upon this question? Do you know how your Senstors stand? If their position is in doubt wire and write them. Bring the force of public opinion to bear upon them. It is a critical time. Your influence may determine the result. Wire them to-day. JONATHAN BOURNE, JR.

President National Progressive Republicar

Republican leaders are hopeful that before the end of another legislative week in the Senate the resolution for popular election of Senators will have been disposed of. The resolution is now the unfinished business. Senators Lodge and Root are to speak at length on the matter. The friends of the resolution are not very hopeful of securing the necessary two-thirds vote of the Senate. They admit that there is a prospect that Senator Sutherland's amendment retaining Federal control over the popular elections at which Senators are to be chosen will be added to the resolution. In that contingency several Southern Democratic Senators would refuse to support the measure but even omitting the contingency of the adoption of the Sutherland amendment the chance of securing two-thirds is alim. The matter will turn upon the votes of four or five Republican Senators whose attitude is in doubt but who are surposed to be opposed to the popular election of Senators.
